Foreword

As Chief Executive of Meath County Council and member of the Meath Age Friendly alliance it gives me great pleasure to present the 3rd Meath Age Friendly Strategy. This strategy reflects the progress made to date and what our Older Persons said, in making Meath an Age Friendly County. All this evidence has been collated and developed collaboratively with our alliance partners in identifying how we intend to achieve the actions we have committed to, in the strategy.

As life expectancy increases, the need to ensure that our county becomes a great place in which to grow old in is increasing too. Therefore, we must be ready to face the challenges that this will bring to society. We will continue to adapt and respond to the changing needs and endeavour to provide supports where needed.

It is recognised that where we live, the physical, social and cultural environment impacts hugely on how we live. An Age Friendly county is a place where more older persons can stay living in their own homes and communities, lead healthy and active lives, go where they want to and be valued contributors to their communities.

Meath County Council together with its partners on the Age Friendly alliance is committed to empowering and participating in the continued development of their communities both rural and urban. Often it is the very simple things that will improve the quality of life for everyone, be it a secure neighbourhood or accessible streets and buildings. These simple things benefit a whole community both young and old.

This strategy is the culmination of a detailed consultation process that brought older people in Meath and the key service providers to identify how we can continue to make Meath a great place to live, work, enjoy life and grow older. With this vision and ambition we can all work together across our towns, villages and neighbourhoods.

I want to thank the chair of the Age Friendly alliance, Michael Finnegan, members of the alliance and the Age Friendly Programme Manager Ms Áine Bird for their continued support and assistance in bringing together this 3rd strategy for Meath.

Finally, I want to pay tribute to Dr Pat Bogue, Broadmore Research & Consulting who passed away suddenly during the preparation of this strategy and sadly did not get to finish the plan.

Jackie Maguire, Chief Executive, Meath County Council

Welcome Message

from the Older Persons Council

As Chairperson of Meath Older Persons Council, I am delighted to be involved with this 3rd Strategy.

As the Age Friendly programme is a National Programme and supported by Government departments, Older People's Councils are a core part of the implementation infrastructure of the Age Friendly programme. They are one of the reasons why the programme has been so successful across the country.

It is necessary to listen to the citizens, as we are an important mechanism to bring the voice of the older citizen to the decision-making table of the Meath Age Friendly alliance, where older people's representatives sit as equal partners with other agencies. The Age Friendly Programme emphasises the value of our older community, and the contribution older people make to wider society, through our knowledge, life experience, volunteering and participation.

As Chairperson, I would like to thank everyone for your tireless work supporting the older population. Age Friendly means age friendly across the life-course, and the work you are doing through your local groups benefits everyone in the community from young to old.

As people are living longer and healthier lives, we need to ensure our county is a great place to grow old in too. It is important that we continue to support the Age Friendly Programme by participating in your Older Persons Council (OPC) and have your voice heard.

I would like to thank my fellow members of the Meath Age Friendly Alliance and the Older Persons across the County for their contribution to this strategy and to Áine Bird, Meath Age Friendly Programme manager in the preparation of this plan.

Ita Healy, Chairperson, Meath Older Persons Council

Introduction

This is the 3rd Age Friendly strategy for Meath and builds on the previous strategies. The Age Friendly county programme was launched in 2011 and operated under two strategies which began in 2012. The programme is hosted under the leadership of Meath County Council Chief Executive Jackie Maguire, is supported by Age Friendly Ireland and is aligned to the eight domains of the World Health Organisation's Age Friendly Cities and Communities Framework.

The Age Friendly cities and counties programme is now active in all 31 local authorities in Ireland, with Ireland becoming the first country in the world achieving and being affiliated to the World Health Organisation Global Age Friendly Network making our country a truly great place to grow old in.

The programme continues to ensure that older people play a valuable role in shaping their communities by giving them a voice to participate in the decision-making process and being responsive to their suggestions.

This strategy continues to give solution focused commitments to deliver and improve key areas of infrastructure, transportation, services, information and a range of ambitious initiatives in response to older people's issues that will greatly enhance their lives over the coming years.

The strategy has been informed by the collective response of Meath Age Friendly alliance in consultation with older people and stakeholders in Meath.

Each Age Friendly alliance partner has given commitments to work together and improve the quality of life of the current population of older people in Meath and create a safe and healthy environment to live in.

An Age Friendly county is a county that recognises the great diversity among older people and promotes their inclusion in all areas of community life. It is a county that respects their decisions and lifestyle choices and anticipates and responds to related needs and preferences.

It recognises that if you design with an older person in mind you will universally support people of all ages and build a sustainable county for all.

“Design for the young and you exclude the old, design for the old and you include everybody”

Setting the Context

International

Population ageing is evident in global population statistics which show a demographic trend that signifies an increasing proportion of older people in the population in almost every country of the world.

World Health Organisation's Global Age Friendly Programme

In response to population ageing at a global level the World Health Organization's (WHO) global Age Friendly programme was established in 2007. The aim on this programme is to encourage countries all over the world to become age friendly - to become places which encourage active ageing by optimising opportunities for people to live healthily, to feel secure and to have their participation in society enabled, overall enhancing quality of life as people age.

The WHO recognises that active ageing is dependent on "a variety of influences or determinants that surround individuals, families and nations. They include material conditions as well as social factors that affect individual types of behaviour and feelings. All of these factors, and the interaction between them, play an important role in affecting how well individuals age".

Reflecting on each of the determinants of active ageing, the World Health Organisation developed a framework of eight themes which encompass the elements within a city/county's structures, environment, services and policies which determine how age-friendly a place is. The themes are outlined in the diagram overleaf.

National Context

The National Positive Ageing Strategy 2013 formally recognises, at a national level, the need for all sectors of society to plan properly for individual and population ageing in Ireland. The visions of the National Positive Ageing Strategy are as follows:

“Ireland will be a society for all ages that celebrates and prepares properly for individual and population ageing. It will enable and support all ages and older people to enjoy physical and mental health and wellbeing to their full potential. It will promote and respect older people’s engagement in economic, social, cultural, community and family life, and foster better solidarity between generations. It will be a society in which the equality, independence, participation, care, self-fulfilment and dignity of older people are pursued at all times.”

Ireland’s population has been getting steadily older since the 1980s. The average life expectancy for men in Ireland (2016 census) is 79.3 years and for women is 83.3 years, and life expectancy at the age of 65 is rising faster here than anywhere else in the EU. By 2051 the average life expectancy for males is 85.6 years with females averaged at 88.3 years. While this is a huge triumph of medicine, the challenge for society is to ensure that this is not just expansion of life years, but expansion of quality life years.

This trend is set to continue, so it is crucial now to plan and prepare for the needs of greater numbers of older people in our communities. The national Age Friendly Programme in Ireland is set in the context of the World Health Organisation’s global Age Friendly movement. Ireland’s Age Friendly Cities and Counties Programme has been leading internationally in rolling out the programme. In April 2019, Ireland became the first country in the world to have full membership with all 31 Local Authorities participating in rolling out the Age Friendly Programme. This was formally recognised in December 2019 with all 31 Local Authorities being presented with charters by the WHO and An Taoiseach in recognition of Ireland’s work in delivering on the aims and ambitions of the WHO Global Network of Age Friendly Cities and Communities, and to formally acknowledge the membership of each local authority led Age Friendly Programme in Ireland to this network.

Age Friendly Ireland

The national Age Friendly Programme is operated by Age Friendly Ireland which is a shared service of local government hosted by Meath County Council. The shared service manages the National Age Friendly Programme, affiliated to the World Health Organization's Age Friendly Cities and Communities Network. The national programme is operated through a team-based framework of 31 local Age Friendly Programmes hosted in local government.

The National Age Friendly Shared Service supports cities, counties, towns, villages and rural communities across Ireland to prepare for the rapid ageing of our population by paying increased attention to the environmental, economic and social factors that influence the health and well-being of older adults.

Age Friendly Programmes work to provide walkable streets, housing and transportation options, access to key services and opportunities for older people to participate in community activities. By doing so, these communities are better equipped to become great places, and even lifelong homes, for people of all ages.

Local Age Friendly Programmes are informed by a positive ageing perspective and seek to enhance and improve the lives of older people across the country by giving them a voice in the decision-making processes that could affect their ability to live full and active lives. Initiatives focus on areas such as housing, transport, caregiving, community engagement, volunteering, social inclusion and combating isolation among older citizens.

Age Friendly Meath Programme

Each local Age Friendly Programme operates with the same structure which relies on an active Older People's Council, an Age Friendly Alliance, an Age Friendly Programme Manager, an Age Friendly Housing Technical Advisor, an interdepartmental group within the local authority and an Age Friendly Ambassador to promote the programme.

The local Age Friendly alliance is a high-level cross-sectoral group and is chaired independently. The member agencies of the alliance form a strategic partnership to develop and oversee the Age Friendly strategy.

Alliance members representing the following agencies:

Chairperson	Meath County Council
Chief Executive	Meath County Council
Director of Service	Meath County Council
Senior Executive Officer	Meath County Council
Councillor	Meath County Council
Manager Older Persons	Health Service Executive
Adult Education Officer	Louth Meath Education Board
Chief Executive Officer	Meath Partnership
Older Persons Council	Chairperson
An Garda Síochána	Superintendent
An Garda Síochána	Crime Prevention Officer
Chief Executive Officer	3rd Age Foundation
Chief Executive Officer	Flexibus, Rural Link

The Alliance has made significant progress in improving key areas of infrastructure, services, and communication for older people in Meath. Consultation with older people in development of age friendly strategies ensure that actions undertaken are aimed at addressing issues affecting older people. Since 2012, the Meath Age Friendly Alliance has implemented two Age Friendly strategies.

The Older People's Council is a representative group of older people, established by a Local authority as part of the local age friendly programme. The Older People's Council is a two-tier structure with an elected executive committee and wide membership base. Older People's Councils identify priority areas of need, raise issues of importance, influence the decision-making process of the local Age Friendly Programme, and participate in national level structures. The key purpose of the Older Peoples' Council is to provide the authentic voice of older people representing the diversity that exists among our ageing population. Older People's Council representatives are key collaborators and stakeholders who co-design the actions and objectives of the Age Friendly Strategy. In Meath a new older person's council is being set up through the Age Friendly programme as previously the Alliance collaborated with an independent older person's committee.

Outcomes-based planning

The Age Friendly alliance will seek to ensure that this strategy achieves measurable outcomes for older people that demonstrate improvements in their quality of life. To guide us, we will use an outcomes-based planning approach based on the framework developed by Age Friendly Ireland.

This approach begins with the end in mind and then determines the actions and activities, which will best achieve to that end. By beginning with broad outcomes, it is clear that no one agency can improve these outcomes, that progress requires various agencies to continue to work collaboratively to improve the lives of older people.

This approach brings the needs of older adult's right to the core of the process and ensures their views, opinions and experiences are given serious consideration in the planning process used by the alliance.

Outcomes for older persons in this context will mean that older persons:

- Are valued and have opportunities to enhance the communities they live in.
- Have opportunities for civic, social and economic participation.
- Are supported to stay living in their own homes and connected to their communities.
- Can lead healthier, longer and active lives.
- Live in places where the social and physical environments are safe when out.
- Can get to where they want to go, when they want to.
- Feel and are safe in their own homes and their communities.
- Have the required information and communications to support them.

Interagency work is important where policies, strategies and services are based on outcomes which are informed by the needs of older adults and from evidence-based research. Each action will contribute to the achievement of one or more of the above-named outcomes.

Summary

Profile of County Meath

The census is normally held every five years however it was postponed in 2021, due to the Covid pandemic. The Central Statistics Office (CSO) has released preliminary figures and recorded the population in the state as being 5,123,536 which is an increase of 361,671 people or 8% on the 2016 population of 4,761,865.

The overall population increase is made up of two components – (a) natural increase which is the difference between total births and deaths (b) net migration, the difference between number of people immigrating and emigrating.

There was a natural increase in the state population of 171,338 as births exceeded deaths over the six years since the last census in 2016 which accounts for 47%. An estimated net migration figure of 190,333 was recorded which accounts for 53% of the population increase.

Meath recorded a population of 220,296 which is a significant increase of 13% or 25,252 people which is above the national average of 8%. Meath reported a high birth to deaths ratio of 2.77 which tends to indicate a younger age profile. The net migration for Meath was 14,921 people which is 59% of the population which is in excess of the national average of 53%.

The Irish Human Rights and Equality Commission Acts require public bodies to have regard to the need to eliminate discrimination, promote equality and protect human rights of service users, staff, and policy beneficiaries across the implementation of all their functions.

In implementing the Public Sector Equality and Human Rights Duty, this Strategy has been developed within, and checked against, the parameters of the Meath County Council Equality and Human Rights Values Statement and the Assessment of Equality and Human Rights Issues as relevant to the functions addressed by the Strategy.

The identified equality and human rights issues pertinent to this Strategy, drawn from the Assessment of Equality and Human Rights Issues, are set out and categorised under the equality and human rights values of Dignity, Inclusion, Social Justice, Democracy and Autonomy as set out and defined in the Values Statement.

Dignity is about the human worth and integrity of all individuals, respect and equal treatment for all regardless of difference, and being person centred.

Statement of Priority: Meath County Council works to be a champion and exemplar for, and set a standard in, creating an environment of quality relationships based on human worth and individual integrity, both at community level and in its workplace.

Relevant Equality & Human Rights Issues:

- Stereotypes, stigma, hate speech, and hate crime across the identified groups.
- Discrimination in service provision across the identified groups.
- Violence and intimidation, including gender-based violence, abuse of older people and fears and experiences of violence in public spaces and in particular for LGBTI+ older people.

Inclusion is about integration and recognition of difference. It concerns community, social cohesion, flexibility in adapting to the diversity of needs, and securing a focus on the most excluded.

Statement of Priority: Meath County Council works to advance more inclusive communities and workplace, encouraging and enabling the participation of groups experiencing inequality.

Relevant Equality & Human Rights Issues:

- Isolation, vulnerability, loneliness, and fear of crime.
- Lack of universal design for buildings and public spaces and IT infrastructure.
- Lack of attention to the specific needs of people in the identified groups.

Social Justice is about the elimination of poverty and the equal distribution of resources, such as employment and public goods and services. It concerns quality of life, wellbeing, and opportunities to participate fully in society.

Statement of Priority: Meath County Council strives to provide opportunities and achieve outcomes for a diversity of groups in its employment and from its service provision, and to advance fair and just relations in the wider society.

Relevant Equality & Human Rights Issues:

- Housing insecurity, poor quality housing conditions, access barriers due to housing design or lack of adaptation, and lack of appropriate accommodation, including lack of culturally appropriate accommodation, and barriers to transition from and out of direct provision into independent living.

- Poverty and high risk of poverty, across the identified groups and in identified areas of deprivation including fuel poverty.
- Participation barriers due to digital literacy issues, digital access issues across the identified groups.

Democracy is about voice, having a say, being heard, and contributing to decision-making. It concerns transparency, accountability, and empowerment. It includes the choice to speak up or not to do so.

Statement of Priority: Meath County Council works to promote and encourage strong community leadership and organisation, and to empower the individual and collective voice for a diversity of groups.

Relevant Equality & Human Rights Issues:

- Lack of opportunities to voice perspectives and lack of influence on decision-making across the identified groups.
- Absence of the voice of organisations of people from within the identified groups in consultation and decision-making fora.

Autonomy is about self-determination and having and making choices. It includes the right to act in one's own interests, free from coercion, having regard to the rights of others.

Statement of Priority: Meath County Council works to ensure groups experiencing inequality have meaningful choices based on real options, in service provision and employment, within the bounds of available resources.

Relevant Equality & Human Rights Issues:

- Absence of or limited options made available in services.
- Congregated settings, direct provision, and forms of institutional care that limit choices and independence
- The above has been used to include actions that address these issues to implement the duty.

Implementation, Monitoring and Review

This Strategy sets out the continued development of Meath as an Age Friendly County where the inclusion and diversity of older people is promoted, valued and actively encouraged. For the strategy to be successful, it should be monitored and reviewed on a regular basis to ensure progress and actions are being achieved.

Lead agencies have committed to implementing the actions in this strategy and will work in collaboration to ensure their delivery. An annual implementation plan will be prepared at the start of each year which will identify agencies, outputs and timeframes for achievement of actions.

Implementation will be monitored by way of updates by lead agencies at quarterly meetings of the Meath Age Friendly Alliance. The Alliance will engage with the Older Persons and listen to their ideas and concerns and utilise this information in the development and evaluation of services to ensure that the needs of the Older Persons are being met.

An annual progress report will be compiled outlining progress made each year of the strategy.
